"Dame! how the moments go,
And the bride is not ready!
Call all her tiring maidens—
Paul, Jean, and Thedie.
Is this your robe, my dear?
Faith, but she's steady!
The bridegroom is tilessed who gets
Such a braye lady.

"Pardie! that throat is fair;
How he will kiss it!
How is your kerchief, girl;
D.d you not miss it?
Quick! don those little shoes,
White as your foot is.
Ho, Jean, Saint Guilotine
Loves these fine beauties!

"Now these long locks must go— Monsieur is waiting; Short is the hour he gives To wooing and mating. Thedie, you fool, the shears!— Time this was ended." Down fails the golden hair, Once lovingly tended,

o from her prison doors
Forth went the lady;
fleat the bridegroom stood.
Not a sound made he.
th, but he clasped her close!—
'Twas a brave lover.
Twas a brave lover.
The bridal is over!"
